

COME CELEBRATE!

NEW YORK THEATRE BALLET

In 1978, Diana Byer founded a ballet company that became a national treasure.

NYTB is an intimate ensemble of soloists.

It breathes life into traditional gems by choreographers such as Ashton, Tudor and Robbins, recreates the works of Moderns including Limón and Cunningham and commissions significant contemporary choreographers such as Alston, Bond, Pelle and Tanowitz.

NYTB is her legacy.

This coming season, Diana will pass the torch to incoming Artistic Director Steven Melendez, a gifted artist who has been a member of the NYTB family for 30 years, having begun his training at age seven in the NYTB School.

NYTB is his future.

Join us as we celebrate this pivotal rite of passage with performances, world premieres, tributes and a toast to NYTB's history, legacy and future.
